Q2 2023 Business Unit Highlights

N.America

YoY 15% ↓ / QoQ 5% ↑

(RE) Toward qualitative growth in response to shrinking market demand price policy and the proportion of high-inch tires.

- Promote sales expansion through diversified distribution like the 4th warehouse operation in Texas.

(OE) Market expansion through supply to Wrangler of STELLANTIS.

Europe

YoY 31% ↑ / QoQ 25% ↑

(RE) Sales exceeded through the sales of high-inch and all weather tires as well as the diversification of distribution channel.

(OE) Stable sales based on supply to Premium OE and sales to VW and others.

Q2 2023 Business Unit Highlights

Korea

YoY 5% ↑ / QoQ 1% ↑

Others

YoY 1% ↓ / QoQ 9% ↓

(RE) The sales proportion of premium tires continues to expand.

(OE) Volume zone : The increase in production of Tucson Sportage & Kona vehicle drives the demand for new car tires.

(RE) Expanding sales in each region through new distribution & online channels.

(OE) Supply to BMW X1 and U12<sup>(1)</sup> commenced in the China.

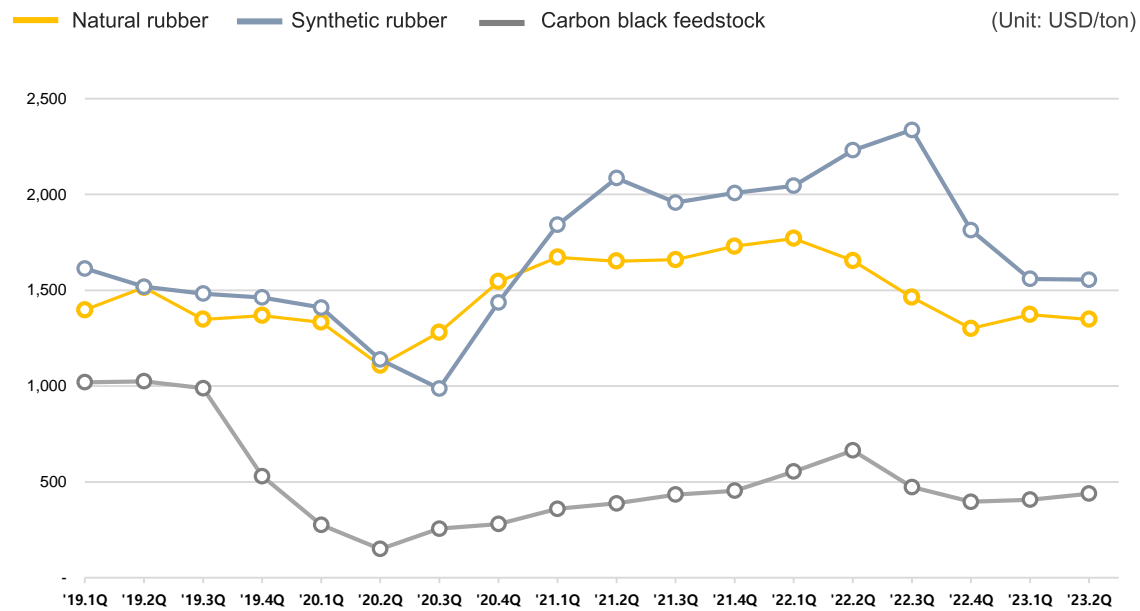

→ Improvement in brand awareness

<sup>(1)</sup> U12 : X1 long-wheelbase model

Q2 2023 Global Market Status

Trends in raw materials

Shanghai Containerized Freight Index (SCFI)

(Natural Rubber) Continued concern over overall weak demand including China, a major consumer (vs.) Low production possibility due to the spread of leaf disease and bad weather in Southeast Asia.

(Synthetic Rubber) Some intermittent price increases in Q1 due to raw material price rise (vs.) Weak price continues due to sluggish demand from the automotive and rubber industries since Q2.

(Carbon Black) The price of both carbon black oil and carbon black continued to be weak due to falling oil price (vs.) Rising oil demand forecasts and production cuts.

- The average SCFI stood at 983pt during Q2 2023, stabilizing to about +27% level compared to Q2 2019.
- Container volume remains sluggish as consumption slump amid tightening policies in major economies.
- Oversupply expected by the delivery of large-scale new ships ordered during the boom period (Q2 2023 to 2024)

Q2 2023 Global Market Status

- [OE] Demand for OE tires rebounded (base effect) YoY due to increased global new car sales, but growth in 2H is gradually decreasing
- [RE] Reduced demand and overstocking continues due to the prolonged war and inflation.
However, the YoY drop in demand (main region including Europe) is on the decline
